DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The lengthy specification has not been checked to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors. Applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant may become aware in the specification.
2. The preliminary amendment filed June 23, 2003 is objected to under 35 U.S.C. 132(a) because it introduces new matter into the disclosure. 35 U.S.C. 132(a) states that no amendment shall introduce new matter into the disclosure of the invention. The added material which is not supported by the original disclosure is as follows: The instant application is a continuation of US Application 09/690,296, which teaches annealing at least two primers, there is no teaching of annealing at least one within the disclosure.

Applicant is required to cancel the new matter in the reply to this Office Action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.
4. Claims 2-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The specification does not describe how only one only one oligonucleotide primer is annealed or that the processing of doing such would yield any productive results.

5. Claims 2-8 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

The specification recites (page 30, 1st paragraph of applicant's specification):

"The step of annealing is performed in the presence of a molar excess of at least two oligonucleotide primers, wherein at least one primer corresponds to the target molecule sequence and at least one other primer corresponds to a sequence that is complementary to the target molecule."

There is no indication that annealing only one primer to the target molecules is sufficient or even possible to perform to achieve the desired results as disclosed.

Double Patenting

6. Claims 2-8 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-7 of U.S. Patent No. 6,582,962.

Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the only difference between the claims is the number of oligonucleotide primers to be annealed. The patent teaches annealing at least two whereas the instant application teaches annealing at least one. It would have been obvious at the time of the invention to experiment and test the results of what occurs when only one oligonucleotide primer is annealed. There is no indication that annealing only one primer to the target molecules is sufficient or even possible to perform or would provide similar or better results than annealing at least two primers.

Response to Arguments

7. Applicant's arguments, see remarks, filed June 24, 2005, with respect to the rejection(s) of claim(s) 2-8 under 35 U.S.C. 101 have been fully considered and are persuasive. Therefore, the rejection has been withdrawn. However, upon further consideration, a new ground(s) of rejection is made in view of US 6,582,696.
